

Our plan for the regeneration of Notheden highstreet is to transform the outdated notion of a street into a series of squares, with vehicular travel underground to completely pedestrianise the area. A European style square will provide a public space to inspire a sense of community and will encourage locals to spend more time on the high street by improving the general aesthetic through landscaping, lighting and public seating. Throughout the site there will be depo points and touch screen kiosks to provide a click and collect online service to compete with the online market such as Amazon.
